

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	v
-----------------------	---

INTRODUCTION	1
--------------------	---

PART I

There Ought to Be a Law

The Need for Findable and Usable Information.....	7
--	----------

I Know It's Here Somewhere, but	10
---------------------------------------	----

Seven Scenarios of Search: Why We Need Better Data Access ..	11
--	----

Managing Government Information	16
---------------------------------------	----

Metadata and a Few Other IT Terms	16
---	----

CHAPTER 1

TRACKING THE WILD GOVERNMENT:

The Federal Records Act and Government Publications.....	21
---	-----------

The Vanishing Trail.....	22
--------------------------	----

The False Reassurance of Backups.....	22
---------------------------------------	----

So Just What Is a Record, Anyway?.....	24
--	----

The Thorny Problem of E-mail.....	24
-----------------------------------	----

General Records Schedule 20: Obliterating the E-mail Trail ..	25
---	----

Agency Web Sites: A Path Not Taken.....	27
---	----

NARA's Electronic Record Archives: A Coming Solution? ..	28
--	----

Government Publications—An Incomplete Solution.....	28
---	----

A Report Card for Agency Recordkeeping	29
--	----

Once Upon a Time of Paper	29
---------------------------------	----

The Shift to Electronic Publications: GPO Access.....	29
---	----

The GPO's Struggle Toward a Digital Future	30
--	----

In Conclusion	32
----------------------------	-----------

CHAPTER 2

GOVERNMENT-WIDE INFORMATION POLICY 35

The Paperwork Reduction Act and Circular A-130 35

 The Original 1980 Paperwork Reduction Act 36

 The Original 1985 Circular A-130 37

 Define Your Terms: Is Government Information Public
 Information? 37

1994 Circular A-130 40

1995 Paperwork Reduction Act Reauthorization 40

 Sweetheart Deals 42

 GILS: A Failure of Policy Implementation 43

Drafting the E-Government Act: An Opportunity Lost. 44

 A Hope Raised (and Thwarted) 45

 Anatomy of a Guttled Bill. 47

Implementing the E-Government Act: Another Hope Fails . . . 50

 What the OMB Should Have Done 52

 The OMB Buries E-Government Act Information
 Management 53

 The OMB's Conclusion 55

 What the OMB Did Instead: Memorandum M-06-02 on Categorizing Government Information. 57

In Conclusion 60

CHAPTER 3

THE REGULATORY SYSTEM FOR ACCOUNTABILITY:

The Freedom of Information Act 65

Some Background on FOIA 66

 Who Has to Respond to a FOIA Request? 67

The FOIA: A History of Congressional-Executive Tension 68

The Executive Branch Reaction. 69

 The Clinton Era. 69

 The Bush Administration: The Ashcroft Memorandum
 (October 12, 2001) 69

 The White House Memoranda on Sensitive Information
 (March 19, 2002). 70

 Impact of the Ashcroft and the White House Memoranda . . . 73

The Hand of Congress and Exemption (b)(3). 77

State of FOIA Process 78

How to File a FOIA Request	78
E-FOIA: The 1996 Amendments	79
Implementation of FOIA and the E-FOIA Amendments—or Not	83
The Impact of Not Enforcing E-FOIA	85
Executive Order 13392: A Cosmetic Reform	87
In Conclusion	88
CHAPTER 4
THE CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE INFORMATION ACT— The Story of a FOIA Exemption	97
It’s Good to Share: Y2K and Disclosing Information	98
A Case History of Statutory Drafting Disaster: CII	99
CII’s Cybersecurity Beginning	99
Liability Limitation Raises Its Ugly Head	102
Hiding Behind FOIA	103
September 11 Gives Birth to CII Legislation	103
Game, Set, and Match: CII Finds a Home in the Homeland Security Act	105
Are We Safer with CII Behind Closed Doors?	107
In Conclusion	111
The National Animal Identification System (NAIS)— An Illustrative Story	111
CHAPTER 5
ACCESS RESTRICTED— The Black Hole of “Sensitive But Unclassified” Information	123
Origins of the SBU Concept: The Reagan Era	124
SBU Develops in the Computer Security Context	126
Sensitive But Unclassified: After 9/11	128
The Information Sharing Environment (ISE) Attempts to Limit—or at Least Get a Handle on—SBU	131
SBU Finds Its Home in the Homeland Security Act	134
Here’s Why SBU’s “Need to Know” Is a Problem	136
The Mosaic Theory	137
2005 Names and Work Locations of Federal Civilian Workers	138
2005 Public Access to Aeronautical Data To Be Blocked	139

2005 Nuclear Plant Locations: Don't Fly Near Them—
 But Where They Are Is Secret 139

2005 You Can Get It, but Not Online: Non-Internet Public . . 139

2005 Toxic Milk? 140

2005 IRS Statistical Tables Harmful to Homeland Security . . 141

2005 Department of Transportation Expands SSI Authority . 142

2004 Geospatial Information Shutdown Documented 142

2004 DHS and the National Environmental Policy Act 142

2004 Birth and Death Records. 143

2004 Results of Inspections of Nuclear Reactors Withheld
 From Public 144

2004 Wireless Communications Outages 144

2004 Information about Judges' Conflicts of Interest
 (and other GAO restrictions) 144

2004 Secret Public Testimony 145

2003 DoD to Withhold Information of "Questionable Value"
 to Public. 145

 And for More Information? Good Luck! 146

In Conclusion 146

 Some Sensitive but Unclassified Designations. 146

Appendix A—A Sample of SBU Memoranda from the American Embassy, Baghdad 149

CHAPTER 6

CLASSIFIED INFORMATION—
Reclassified, Overclassified, and Misused 161

A Brief History of Classified Information 162

 The Espionage Act of 1917: Still Having an Impact 162

 Growth of the Power of the Executive 164

 Eisenhower to Reagan 164

 The Clinton Era 165

 Return to Expanded Official Secrecy: The Bush Era 165

 Congressional-Executive Tension. 166

Where We Are Now 167

 Using Classification Authority To Take Material
 Out of the Public Domain 169

 Overclassification: If we told you. 174

 Misusing Classification 176

In Conclusion 179

PART I CONCLUSION	187
PART II
APPROACH TO OPENNESS AND ACCOUNTABILITY	189
INTRODUCTION	191
CHAPTER 7
THE EXECUTIVE'S POWER OVER INFORMATION ACCESS	193
Congress's Glass House	194
Let a Thousand—Well, Five Hundred—Flowers Bloom:
The Clinton Years	195
Where Have All the Flowers Gone? The Bush Era.	196
When the Executive Resists Accountability.	197
Ignoring the Question	197
Signing Statements.	198
Rejecting the GAO's Demands for Disclosure.	200
Presidential Records	204
September 11th Inquiry	206
In Conclusion	208
CHAPTER 8
MANIPULATING INFORMATION—
The Dangerous Capacities of the Executive Branch	213
Summary	213
Propaganda	214
Controlling Contacts	214
Controlling PR.	215
Who Can You Believe?	215
Scrubbing Web Sites	216
The Medicare Spin.	217
Department of Defense Media.	218
In Conclusion	220
CHAPTER 9
POLITICAL SCIENCE	223
Global Warming	224

Early Actions: 2002	224
Changing NOAA Reports: 2005	225
Denying Access to NOAA Scientists: 2005	226
Silencing a Top NASA Scientist: 2006	226
Gagging Polar Bears: 2007	227
Agency by Agency	228
The National Academies on Bioterrorism: 2002	228
The USDA and Preclearance: 2002	228
The EPA on Benzene: 2002	229
HHS and Ideological Agendas: 2002	229
Interior and the World Heritage Committee: 2003	229
Interior and Cattle Grazing: 2005	230
Interior and the Lobbyists: 2007	230
Case Study: Air Quality	231
NOAA on Sonar and Beached Whales: 2006	233
NOAA on Endangered Salmon: 2006	234
Controlling Scientists: Some final thoughts	234
Getting Around Government Scientists	235
And Getting Rid of Them Altogether	237
Even Non-government Information Is Not Safe	237
Impact of the Data Quality Act	239
Scientific Discontent	243
The UCS/PEER Survey on Scientists' Discontent	244
The GAP Report on Scientific Censorship	245
In Conclusion	246
AFTERWORD
A REPUBLIC: HOW TO KEEP IT	255
Access to Government Information Organizations	260
INDEX	265